1. INTRODUCTION

This report is the fifth edition of Innovation Centre Denmark in São Paulo's funding guide for researchers.

It provides an overview of funding opportunities for researchers in Denmark and Brazil working or wanting to work with respective counterparts. Included in the report are current and expected openings and links to the official call texts where further information on eligibility and application criteria can be found.

The guide presents a selection of calls that to the knowledge of Innovation Centre Denmark in São Paulo are specifically relevant for collaboration between Danish and Brazilian researchers. It is, however, not an exhaustive overview of all current funding openings for international research collaboration.

For more information, questions and dialogue, or if you have suggestions for additional funding opportunities to be included in the next edition, please contact:

Horizon 2020 and co-funding from Brazilian 'FAP's'

This means that Brazilian researchers, enterprises and institutions can team up with European partners to develop together knowledge, research data and leading scientific teams and networks. Not all international partners are automatically eligible for funding.

INNOVATION CENTRE DENMARK

SÃO PAULO

	While the European Union will fund the participation of partners from developing countries, it does not automatically fund the partners from industrialised countries such as Brazil. However, it is expected that the programmes will include initiatives where: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The EU, in certain cases, decides to fund participation of entities from any country in the world, if the cases are identified in advance in the H2020 Work Programmes. • In exceptional cases, where participation is deemed by the Commission to be essential for carrying out the action, the EU may decide to fund a non-European participant in a project on an ad-hoc basis. Several State funding agencies (FAPs), including the agency from São Paulo, FAPESP, have expressed interest in funding researchers from their own states to support their participation in H2020 calls and have published guidelines on how to apply. Besides FAPESP, the state funding agencies of the following Brazilian states have published guidelines: Santa Catarina, Minas Gerais, Goiás, Distrito Federal (Brasília), Mato Grosso do Sul and Paraná

	capacity in developing countries. The call published in 2016 outlined the following areas of research: Brazil – Digital governance Digital innovation in public institutions is a component of the strategic sector cooperation programme between Brazil and Denmark. The aim is to study tools to generate ideas and develop radically new opportunities in a complex world. Forming new relations between people, information technologies (IT) and society constitute the basis for collaboration. Possible research areas include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • digital governance and enterprise architecture; • process innovation and new business models; • using big data to improve governance; • security in e-Government. Brazil – Health information technology (IT) Developing information technology (IT) in the health sector is included in strategic sector cooperation between Brazil and Denmark. Despite differences in income levels and organization, there are interesting similarities between the two countries that could be explored and would serve as common ground in a research project: the aging population, the rise in chronic diseases, hospital overload, increasing IT-readiness and the focus on home monitoring of patients. The public health services cater for 75 percent of the population in Brazil. With a vast population and higher than average level of urbanization, there is considerable scope for upscaling IT in health care services. Research is needed to explore the potential for IT use in the sector. It can be expected that the call to be published in 2017 could include the same or similar fields but this has not yet been confirmed..
